

10 always right and 10 always wrong behaviours in most important to less important ?

Always right	Always wrong
greeting your workers/colleagues gives a positive vibe on the workfloor and also makes people aware that you're at the office or there.	Not respecting human rights (they are the base of correct approach towards any human being)
show mutual respect to each other on the workfloor (by e.g. respecting the different points of view, diversity of individuals and by that creating the tolerant and nonjudgemental environment)	Disrespectful behaviour: 1- insult colleagues 2- hurt them physically
Act in good faith	Abuse of position (examples)
show appreciation for each other's work	Rude communication
showing that you're willing to work hard and grow (pro-activity)	Nepotism
trying to communicate in a right way communicating in a right way verbal and vocally is makes people feel comfortable.	underappreciation (reward system wise)
Being open minded to others ideas (in that way nobody is scared to communicate their opinions)	Bribery
Share passion about your job	Use of corporate resources for personal uses
Taking responsibility for externalities (Ecology, environment)	Fraud / stealing
Using a fair/meritocratic reward system	Sabotaging the work of others to take the credits etc. Harassing
